My experience eating BORO!

Name: Aria PJP

Class Five Blue

My expectations:

I expect the boro to have the same hardness of the inside of a cracker. I also think it will taste crumbly and sort of like a pancake. ✓

When I tried Boro:

I was surprised by how small the boro was. The boro tasted like egg and flour. The boro looked like miniature bread rolls that were dry and had a hard shell. If you put the boro straight into your mouth and started to bite on it, it is hard, then it goes crumbly, and finally it melts in your mouth. The boro smell like egg and a lot of flour. ✓

My final impressions:

I would definitely recommend boro for people to try because I really enjoyed eating it. I think that little kids would enjoy boro because while this snack tastes good, it looks cute and fun. I really enjoyed eating boro this Japanese lesson, and hope that we can do more eating Japanese food experience lessons. ✓

My experience eating BORO!

Name: Jayden Lisy

Class 5 Blue

My expectations:

I think that the biscuit will be sweet. It could be hard and milky. I also expect that it will be crunchy. ✓

When I tried Boro:

Truly, the Boro was sweet and it was quite hard although, it was powdery inside. Also, it was crunchy. Overall, I liked the flavour but with it was less powdery. ✓

My final impressions:

I love this snack because it was really cute and had the perfect amount of sweetness. Boro felt smooth, looked like cute burger buns and I couldn't smell it because of a blocked nose. Others say it smells like egg, flour or honey.

I rate Boro a 4/5. ✓
